

HRE Health and Benefits Leadership Conferences Announces Panelists for Closing General Session

Health and benefits expert panel will explore service delivery methods and team competencies to improve and transform the health and benefits industry

PALM BEACH GARDENS, FLA. (April 10, 2017)— Human Resource Executive® magazine, the premier publication focused on strategic issues in HR and producers of the Health & Benefits Leadership Conference (HBLC) announced details on this year's Closing General Session, Transforming Health and Benefits by Rethinking Organizational Design, being held Friday, April 21, 2017 at ARIA Resort and Casino in Las Vegas. A distinguished panel of HR and benefits leaders will explore how they're rethinking and reshaping their structures, service delivery methods and team competencies to improve effectiveness and enhance business performance.

Notable industry leaders featured on the panel include, Brain Baker, Senior Vice President of Strategy, Associate Experience and People Innovation of Walmart; Beau Davidson, Vice President of Human Resources of Nvidia; Kathy Gantz, Vice President of HR Operations at Cantene Corporation; Sandeep Singh, Senior Director of Total Rewards Kellogg Company; and moderator, Nate Randall, Founder and President of Ursa Major Consulting, will discuss how to improve effectiveness and enhance business performance.

As organizations evolve to meet market and consumer demands, so too must employee benefit teams. The structures and approaches that have served HR and benefits leaders well in the past aren't necessarily geared to serve them well today or tomorrow. Designing benefits that improve the employee experience, tie into corporate goals, leverage technology and deliver real value may require organizational restructuring, and staffing benefit teams are necessary to diverge with current models.

In addition to this year's closing general session, HBLC will feature experts presenting in seven general sessions and more than 24 breakout sessions in six program tracks. Hear from prominent industry leaders from a wide array of companies such as Hulu, Lowe's, Michelin and more!
